

The metaphor becomes obvious only by the third stanza, when the narrator eventually appears in the poem. At the same time, the metaphorical implication of axes is evident since words may be as sharp and striking as axes and they may heat and hurt a person just like axes heat and hurt trees.