

The law of supply and demand is a theory that describes how sellers of a resource interact with buyers of that resource.