

In conclusion, the glaciers and many animals have been affected by global warming. The warming of the atmosphere and climate is melting the glaciers. This is increasing the water levels and damaging the habitat of many animals on land and sea. As a result, many animals are already extinct, and many more are near extinction. In my opinion, we should take care of our planet because global warming is a huge issue.