

Once upon a time, there was a young man named Ali who lived in a small village. He began his journey through dense forests and flowing rivers.