

People: end users and information technology staff Procedures: the rules or guidelines people follow when using software, hardware, and data Software: programs that tell the computer how to do its work – they process data to convert it into information Hardware: the equipment that processes the data to create information Data: the raw, unprocessed facts including text, numbers, images, and sounds.

Connectivity allows computers to connect and share information