

Matter is a substance made up of various types of particles that occupies physical space and has inertia.