

For the design plans of the Interpretation Device, a comprehensive technical document in the form of a product specification sheet would be ideal. This document would outline the various aspects of the device's design, functionality, and technical specifications.