

Analog Horror is a horror subgenre utilizing old media aesthetics like VHS and CRT TVs to evoke dread and psychological tension. It avoids jumpscare, focusing on atmosphere, distorted reality, and a sense of hidden wrongness within familiar media. Presented as found footage or corrupted broadcasts, it makes the horror feel real and grounded.