

Many companies use established drugs from their competitors as a lead compound in order to design a drug.