

Caitlin Clark's New Coach Drops Blunt Take About Fever Star. Indiana Fever star Caitlin Clark is a woman of many talents, and she's proving as much amid the WNBA offseason. While the Indiana sharpshooter was joking, her love for golf is real. Interestingly, it seems Clark has a knack for the sport, which former LPGA player Martha Foye-Faulconer attested to. Clark is preparing to compete in the program ahead of The ANNIKA driven by Gainbridge at Pelican on Nov. 13. Given she is being paired with world No. 1 Nelly Korda and LPGA legend Annika Sorenstam, Clark sought Foye-Faulconer's help to improve her swing. Foye-Faulconer shared how Clark has a natural talent for the sport, something not even grit and determination can make up for.
