

Building connections is important for happiness because they create fun memories, provide support, and bring joy through shared experiences.