

Whenever entry has to be controlled, either for charging purposes or to prevent congestion, the choice has to be made between lifting-arm and rising-step barriers. Cases have been reported of vehicles being damaged, either by barrier malfunction or because they were not immediately visible to motorists.