

Moreover the ability of a system or product to function as intended that is, without malfunctioning and within predefined performance criteria for a certain amount of time--in its life cycle application environment is known as its reliability.