

My typical workday is structured to balance productivity and focus. Around midday, I take a short break and then handle emails, meetings, or collaborative tasks in the afternoon. I also make time for small habits like stretching, staying hydrated, and taking short walks to stay refreshed.