

"How have I become the kind of person I am today?" The study of social and personality development offers perspective on these and other issues, often by showing how complex and multifaceted are the influences on developing children, and thus the intricate processes that have made you the person you are today (Thompson, 2006a). How enduring are the influences of early experiences? How much are we products of nature or nurture?