

Having low levels of glucose or oxygen in his cells makes it difficult for Guillermo to walk up steps because both are essential for cellular respiration, which is the process cells use to produce energy (ATP).