

The CPU manages input from devices (like keyboards and controllers), handles data in RAM and storage, and controls output to monitors and speakers to ensure smooth gaming.