

The Intel Itanium, introduced in 2001, was a groundbreaking 64-bit microprocessor architecture co-developed by Intel and Hewlett-Packard (HP).