However, as an interior designer, it's not just about picking out colors and fabrics to make a space more beautiful; interior designers also have to take care of everything that needs to make the place meet the customers' needs and make them happy and satisfied with it. This means that interior designers must take other things into account such as studying the site and space, as well as studying the purpose or function of the rooms in a building.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com