

Speak assertively. Whereas an aggressive response may come off as bullying and a passive response may invite bullying, an assertive response helps you to remain firm in your convictions while allowing the other person to have her own space as well. Being assertive is a middle way between being aggressive and being passive. Keep your voice firm and relaxed, but sincere.