

Me and my family decided go to a journey to Salalah. When we arrived in Salalah, we was immediately greeted by the lush greenery and vibrant atmosphere that defines this coastal city. The air was filled with the sweet scent of frankincense, adding to the magical ambiance of the place. It was a tiring day but worth it. We also ventured to the coastline to bask in the beauty of Salalah's pristine beaches. After some rest, we starting by visiting Souq Al Hosn, where I picked up some exotic spices, admired Salalah's well-known handicrafts, and engaged in friendly banter with the local merchants. We hiked through the verdant valleys of Wadi Darbat, it was great to see waterfalls in huge pools that dotted the landscape. We spent lazy afternoons lounging on the soft sands of Mughsayl Beach.
