

The economic motives through which companies run by capitalists were granted/ given monopoly of a commodity by the monarch, who gained by taxing profit made by trading it.