

Ecosystems depend on sustainable energy inputs, and with the fossil fuel revolution, societies began to rely on non-renewable energy sources. Petroleum is the fuel of choice for transportation due to its high energy density, but the vast majority of the fuel is used to propel the vehicle itself. (1885 kg) compared to the average person's weight of 165 lbs.