

coli). Because both diseases are caused by organisms that can spread throughout a population, they are considered infectious diseases.