

With the start of the new thousand years, gadget creators started to bit by bit coordinate the elements of individual colleagues into cells, and the principal remarkable exertion in this field was the Nokia 9000, where Nokia dispatched a gathering of telephones focused on financial specialists, and this gathering started with the Nokia 9000, which was a blend between a telephone and an individual computerized right hand. The details of this gadget comprised of: a 640 x 200-pixel monochrome LCD screen with contact buttons, notwithstanding an outer screen.