

This is in addition to the negative impact that limits the development of students on the social and emotional level, which is why it has become one of the most challenging distance education challenges that we face today