

The power curve of a wind turbine is divided into: o Cut-in speed: Where the area before this point represents the lack of power generated due to the lack of sufficient wind speed to move the turbine and generate power.