

Unless you enter the Underground with your eyes closed, you can't fail to notice the advertising. With around 150,000 commuters entering the network every hour, the tube stations are great places for companies to advertise. All the events and venues are there: plays, shows, galleries, cinemas and theatres.