

The sentences that follow the topic sentence are the supporting sentences. If the sentences talk only about something other than the topic sentence, it is irrelevant and should be deleted. The supporting sentences provide more detail about the topic by using examples and facts. All the supporting sentences should be about the topic only.