

All over the world there are strange, popular or common customs and traditions that distinguish the country from others, such as Arab and Islamic countries and others, but in some countries and countries there are bad and good customs, such as Singapore, where chewing gum was legally banned in Singapore in 1992 and was reviewed in 2004. For the owner of the purpose so that he can find his purpose.