

Through our research, we discovered that all young people believe that controlling anger is very important, and 90% of them agreed that it is a big problem.