

4- North Korea is almost completely a dictatorship under Kim Jong Un. He has total control over the country, and there are no real elections or freedom to speak out. If someone disagrees with Kim Jong Un or the government, they can be punished very harshly. This makes North Korea one of the most controlled and unfree places in the world. Most people cannot make their own choices about what to say, watch, or do, and the government closely watches everyone. Everyday life is controlled by strict rules, and people are expected to show loyalty to the leader.