

Virtualization isn't new but it's new In many organizations, companies of all sizes are investing in virtualization technologies to reap many benefits: server and desktop savings, reduced physical servers, increased uptime and availability, better disaster recovery, energy savings and more.