Insertion and deletion operations in a linked list can be more efficient compared to an array. If the insertion or deletion is performed at the beginning or the end of the linked list, it can be done in constant time O(1) by updating the references.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com