

Opinion surveys continue to reveal that employee commitment and engagement are decreasing, while unionization efforts are increasing. Employees stayed at their jobs longer, performed harder and better, recommended family members and friends to apply for open positions, missed fewer work- days, and participated more in the activities of the organization.