

Identification of Regions of interest or (ROI) is the process of separating the desired or will be area of interest from the background or the entire major region for an additional process of feature extraction.