

A school is place of learning for a child. The school had a compound with lush green lawns and flowers bedded. He gave me a packet of toffees to be distributed among my classmates. Here he forms new associates, comes in contact with boys of different temperaments and forms new ideas and habits. So the right type of educational school is of great importance for him. I was enrolled in a school at the age of five.