

Jerusalem is our land, the capital of our hearts, our right that is stolen every hour, that dazzling story told by grandfathers and grandmothers, we watched it on television, we read it between the lines of old books, Jerusalem is our stories, so what is its story? We hope to become a reliable reference for everyone. Our materials varied in content and style, from documentaries about events and heroes to documenting the daily lives of the people of Jerusalem, such as the story of Saber and Abdul Qader Al-Husseini. He said that his name was Muhammad, and that he wanted to become an engineer and build the houses they demolished, but the occupation captured him a long time ago. I was not fond of watching it, but later I began to associate my grandmother's stories with what I saw in documentaries, from the Battle of Qastal to the heroics of Sheikh Al-Aqsa. Abu Riad dried thyme, you will not find a better taste anywhere else. In winter, rainwater seeps in. His childhood friend Ahmed told me that they wanted to demolish Ahmed's house. I grew up hearing about Jerusalem on the radio and participating in radio competitions dealing with Jerusalem, the city, civilization, and history. That's what the old woman told me. Muhammad took me to Abu Riyad's shop. They did not allow us to rebuild or repair it. The situation has remained the same since then. The number of people who knew that Al-Aqsa Mosque is everything inside the wall did not exceed ten people. Over the past five years, excellence and creativity have been our motto.
