

Anaesthetics are gases (or other substances) which make people unconscious. He was born in 1811 and died in 1870. Of nitrous oxide, Sir Humphry Davy wrote, apparently to relieve physical pain. They are used in operations, and this passage mainly tells us about nitrous oxide. This man was a famous scientist and was the author's father. The passage comes from Sir James Y. Simpson (1896).