

Health care services are the sum total of public and private services and institutions provided by the state to take care of the health of its citizens, whether in its sector or within the private sector, and it is entrusted with the approach of the patient .[1]