

So, they do not consider the entire set of benefits when they decide how much to produce.