

Addiction to technical novelties has become a new phenomenon of modern civilization. Psychologists determined that overindulgence to technical devices may lead to mental disorder. As a rule, wives strongly object to their husbands' wishes to buy a new plasma TV-set, a super slim laptop or a recordable DVD player, for instance.