

First and foremost, no one should be forced to witness and experience the horrors of war against their will. Forcing unwilling Australians to endure this trauma is morally wrong.