

Caitlin Clark appears to quit on Fever coach Christie Sides and ignore her with game on the line. whatever Indiana Fever head coach Christie Sides was trying to tell her team in the huddle before the final play, down one point against archrival Chicago Sky, Caitlin Clark didn't want to hear it. The superstar guard shrugged her shoulders and walked away, giving up on winning the game. Caitlin Clark ignores coach before final shot Fever fans were not happy. Others shifted the blame, like one user who wrote: "Maybe this was the game she realized some of her teammates just suck and can't be relied upon in the clutch." Caitlin was dubbed "disrespectful" and a "whiner," with one basketball fan drawing comparisons to LeBron James' dismissive attitude toward former Los Angeles Lakers coach Darvin Ham. Others couldn't believe the Indiana defense allowed Angel Reese to dominate to the tune of 25 points and 16 rebounds in the Sky's 89–88 victory. Any trust and good vibes that were built up during Indiana's preceding four–game win streak seemed long gone when Clark left the huddle while Sides was forming the strategy for a potential game–winning shot with 0.5 seconds remaining and her team down by one point. On the ESPN broadcast, you could see Sides asking which player had a certain assignment during the timeout. "We all know what happens when that happens."
