

This will require an additional time t_r , known as formative time lag. So, the breakdown of the gap will take place after a time $(t_s + t_f)$ from the instant of application of the breakdown voltage. This is called the total time lag for breakdown.