

The text speaks of the inevitable descent into chaos and violence accompanying the decay of civilization, highlighting the failure of moral and intellectual forces to confront this decline. It asserts that rule by the masses always leads to a barbaric stage of chaos.