

I always relied on my mother for everything that concerned me, and I was very sensitive, and the day came that changed all of this, which was when my mother traveled for treatment.