

Devices that emit ionizing rays include gamma-ray machines containing radioactive cobalt, X-ray machines more powerful than those used in medical diagnosis, and cathode-ray machines. X rays are intermediate, and cathode rays are least penetrating.