

A key question for any organization is how to effectively organize and implement change.. There must be an ongoing organizational commitment to encouraging these improvements and putting them in place. This could include any and all business functions whether it be finance, operations management, marketing or human resource.