

A global firm Operates in more than one country Gains marketing, production, R&D, and financial advantages not available to purely domestic competitors Sees the world as one market